From the Editor's Desk —

This issue of "Numisma" contains our Fifth Mail Bid Sale, closing on Friday, August 10th. The July 20th issue of the NUMISMATIC SCRAPBOOK will also contain a Mail Bid Sale, the bids there closing on Monday, August 13th. Those interested in this "Numisma" sale might also look in the Scrapbook, and bid on both offerings. Please carefully identify however, which bids are for what listing.

These "Numisma" Mail Bid Sales have proved to be quite popular. They were initiated in response to those mail customers who wanted popular and moderately expensive coins offered just to them. It seems that our regular Auction Sales attract a very strong floor following, resulting in a very high percentage of the material publicly sold going to those present. The "Scrapbook" listings generally appear each year during the summer months, in an effort to reduce inventory and attract new names to our mailing lists. As always with mail bidding, some lots are sold at very reasonable prices. For that reason, we strongly urge participation in one or both of these sales.

The coin business continues stronger than ever. If our mail is any criterion, many collectors are looking for the odd items, either in coins, tokens or paper money. Interest in the "popular" series, commemoratives and what-not, seems to be partly contrived at times, at least to the extent that we find the demand far from solid. Our market for nice Colonial coins, early U.S. Silver in top-shape, rare Colonial paper, CSA and Southern State notes and bonds, Lottery Tickets, and just about everything else that might be undervalued elsewhere, continues strong. We recently purchased a Canadian item (not a decimal coin) for $875., a U.S. Token for $82.50, Confederate bills and bonds from $1.75 to $232.50 ea., and many other interesting items. If you want to know what it's worth, just ask!

Send those bid cards in early —

THE QUESTION FORUM

We invite our readers to submit any questions or problems relating to U. S., Early American or Canadian Coins, Medals, Tokens, Literature, etc., including Patterns, Restrikes and similar material. The questions of most general interest will be answered in detail here; others will receive written replies on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Ques. In the August 1955 issue of the NUMISMATIC SCRAP-BOOK, one Marianne F. Miller in an article entitled "Along the Counterfeit Trail" states that "Spanish Milled Dollars that found their way into the searching fingers of the minting house (John Hull's Boston Mint) met one of two fates. They were either melted down, or stamped with an 'NE' to show they were still within the prescribed weight limit." I have never seen nor heard of any Spanish-American silver so stamped. Have you, or has anyone else? N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Ans. It is true that an act of the legislature of Massachusetts Bay Colony, October 8, 1672, authorized such stamping. But no such countermarked coins have been reported. Our own suspicion is that it proved far more profitable for the mintmasters simply to melt any Spanish or Spanish-American silver that came in, converting it to Pine Tree coins at their usual 5% commission (one shilling for every twenty coined). They would have made only 0.4% (one penny the pound) on counterstamping Spanish silver; and as Crosby points out, the lawmakers introduced an intolerable complication in that they required the weight and fineness to be stamped on each light Spanish dollar. This would require weighing and assaying each individual specimen — an expensive and time-consuming procedure, and clearly more trouble than it was worth. Moreover, little Spanish silver was brought in for the purpose. The act of 1672 was designed to combat exportation of these coins. For the three reasons named, it is reasonably safe to say that this law was a dead letter from the day it was promulgated.

Ques. I would like to complete my set of Proof and Unc. Trade Dollars. A month ago, I was offered an 1884. Do you believe that I need the '84 and '85 coins to complete my set? I have heard that these two dates are not regularly issued coins. What is the history of these pieces? Do I want them? C. C., St. Louis, Mo.

Ans. There was an article in the NUMISMATIST, July 1952, pp. 684-686, on this very subject. In it Walter Breen investigates the legality of these coins, based on Archives records, and concludes that they represent a clandestine effort in the Coiner's Department, either private enterprise by the Chief Coiner, or collusion between him and the then Superintendent of the Philadelphia Mint. The 1884-85 thus appear about on a par with the 1804 Dollar and 1913 Nickel, presumably made only for profit motives. If that is what you like in coins, go ahead and buy the 1884 — if someone has not already grabbed it. But if you collect regular issues, then the 1884 does not belong. The 1859-60 Half Dimes without UNITED STATES have achieved fantastic popularity on the basis of being transitional patterns (though we could name others whose boom is yet to come, like the 1876 Double Eagles with 1877 reverse, 1859 Cents with '60 reverse, 1863 bronze and 1863 "L" Cents, etc.), but the 1884-85 Trades do not have even this honest claim to fame — only an obscure and dubious origin, plus a limited mintage. The high records for these two coins is based upon the glamor imparted by highly publicized date rarity.

Ques. I have often heard or read references to Machin's Mill in connection with our Colonial copper coins. Where and what was Machin's Mill? J. L., Rochester, N. Y.

Ans. This was a "Manufactory of Hardware" located near Orange Lake, outside Newburgh, N. Y. It was built in 1784 on land owned by Capt. Thomas Machin, military engineer during the Revolution. "Hard Ware" was a common British slang term for copper coins particularly of halfpenny size. Machin associated himself with Samuel Atlee, porter brewer, a naturalized Briton, James F. Atlee, die sinker, David Brooks, James Grier, acting treasurer, and James Giles, lawyer. The principal product was imitation British halfpence; they come with dates 1747, 1776, 1778, 1787, 1788. These regularly have single outlines to crosses in the shield held by Britannia, instead of double outlines found on British productions. All halfpence of the last three dates so far seen are Machin's Mill products. A number of die varieties exist, some quite rare. One of the 1776 coins has the same obverse (with spelling CEORCIVS) as is found with the LIBER NATUS obverse in a unique muling (1954-55 Std. Cat., p. 41). The reverse of many of the 1787's is the same die regularly found badly worn with a Vermont obverse (Ryder 13). GEORGIUS obverses are also found with Vermont and Connecticut reverses and also with a badly worn IMMUNE COLUMBIA obverse. All these are reliably attributed to Machin's Mill, as are several Connecticuts (1788-1-1, 2-D and 16'-D) and Vermonts (Ryder 1, 13, 27, 31, and possibly 18, 28, 29, 30, 33, 35). Minting operations were carried on in secret and at night; horrendous noises came from the mill, apparently from certain steps in preparing blank planchets for the press, and the workers wore hideous masks to frighten away the local children. In June 1787 the Machin's Mill establishment made a complicated partnership agreement with the Vermont mint, Atlee hereafter making dies for both, treasurers being exchanged, a common joint stock being set up, etc. Possibly half a ton of coppers were coined at Machin's Mill in 1789, not too much before or afterwards; the partnership broke up in 1790, the Mill closed in 1791. A partial account of this cloak-and-dagger coining enterprise is found in Crosby, EARLY COINS OF AMERICA, pp. 190-202; other details are in Simms, HISTORY OF SCHOHARIE COUNTY. The original agreements among the Machin's Mill partners, and the indenture between them and the Vermont coiners, are preserved at ANS. Our good friend Eric Newman is now completing a monograph on Colonial coppers, which includes a lengthy section on Machin's Mill. This will be the definitive publication on the subject, if the present state of the manuscript is any criterion, and we highly recommend it to our readers.
